

WHAT'S IN THE BAG?

Every uni student needs something to get them through the day. What better way to store your uni essentials than with a book bag? Whether you use a purse, satchel or briefcase, there's always something you need because your bag doesn't just contain textbooks, it contains your life. You can learn a lot about a person by what's in their bag. So here are some students who've revealed what's lurking in there.

Items: laptop, textbook, water bottle, wallet, charger, pencils, headphones, lotion

Kaitlin is studying law. When asked what these items say about her, she said "They say that I came prepared for a day of smashing out assignments." The most important items she keeps in her bag are her laptop, earphones and food. The items in her bag are constantly changing because she shifts between putting things in and out of her work and school bag. An item that stays in her bag are her coffee cards because coffee helps her get through long days at uni.

Items: laptop, charger, water bottle, camera, umbrella, badminton racket

Who says uni is all fun with no play? For IT student Hendi, he likes to mix it up. After a full day at uni, he heads over to KG to play badminton. Photography is one of his hobbies so he has a camera in his bag to spontaneously capture things that spark his interest. "These items reflect a nerd that's trying to be sporty," he said. Hendi's laptop is essential getting him through uni. He never brings a notebook because his laptop is the only thing he uses to take notes.

Items: book, banana, water bottle

Sam is a business marketing student who likes to keep bananas in his book bag. Having snacks is a necessary item to stash in his bag. "I keep small snacks to keep me going throughout the day," he said. He doesn't have much in his bag but he usually includes a notepad. He has an internship and doesn't spend much time at uni which is why there's minimal items.

Items: notebook, Maltesers, laptop, charger, lunch

James is studying aerospace engineering and keeps the items in his bag at a minimum. His most important items are his laptop and charger. "I think the stuff in my bag describes me as a typical, hungry, lazy uni student," he said. As you can tell from this picture, he has a bit of a sweet tooth. "I like to keep snacks in my bag, depending on whether I have money or not," he said. Obviously he had money that day because he had a large bag of Maltesers. But he did have one notebook so we'll give him credit for trying.

Items: laptop, fork, mascara, beanie, notebook

Shannyn is a justice and social work student that comes to uni prepared in different ways. It's getting cooler outside so she keeps a beanie with her. She always keeps a laptop, book and fork in her purse. "A lot of places don't provide forks, so I make sure to keep one with me," she said. It's always good to have a handy dandy fork and Shannyn is ready to take on uni with these items.

Items: longboard, headphones, iced coffee, brake glove, water bottle, cologne

Henrique is a civil engineering student who rolls into uni differently than others. Who needs a textbook when you have a longboard? The longboard is a necessary item for him because he loves riding it and it provides a faster way to get around. As you can see, he keeps a fork in his bag as well. Headphones are one of the most important items in his bag. He enjoys listening to music and it helps when it comes to studying and blocking out the noises around him.

So now you've gotten to see what other students keep in their bags. Some students are detailed packers while some are minimalists. Most students keep laptops, snacks and water bottles and some have unique items that reflect their personality.
